

Case study

Resignation Media chose MoPub to power direct sales and yield management. Mobile grew from 5 to 50% of total ad revenue since partnering with MoPub.

Challenge

Even sophisticated online publishers face unique challenges when expanding their monetization footprint to mobile.

In the five years since launch, theCHIVE built a large, passionate audience and successful online advertising business. As that audience increasingly shifted their consumption behavior to apps and mobile web, the company needed a more sophisticated monetization solution that could scale with its rapidly growing mobile user base.

The success metric for a platform change was a significant increase in ad revenue from mobile properties. Developing in-house expertise in mobile monetization was also a significant factor behind the decision making process.

-Mike Santa Cruz, Ad Ops Manager, theCHIVE

“As my business grows, my optimization needs grow. i really enjoy (and use) the premier level account service and I am in daily contact with my account manager over the phone, Skype, and email.”

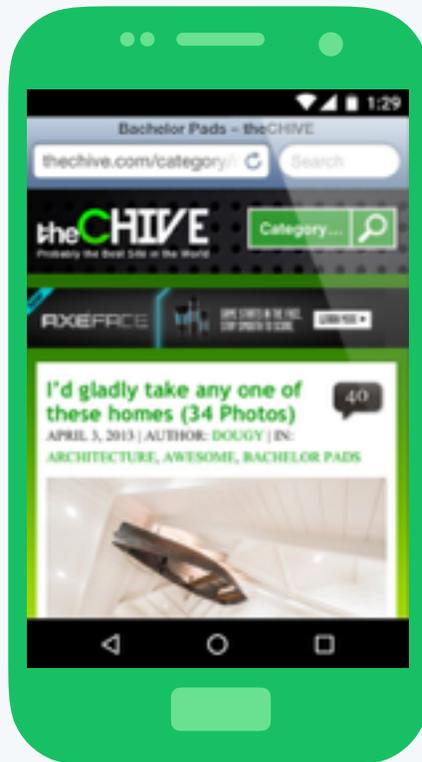

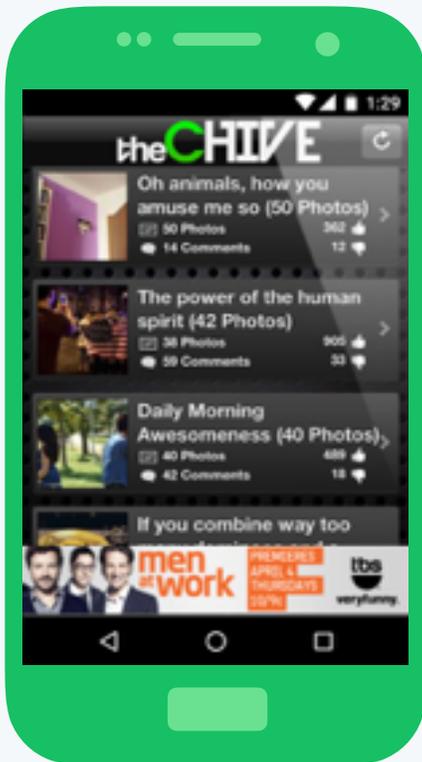

-Eric Spielman, VP of Mobile, theCHIVE

Key Results

Mobile has grown from 5% to 50% of theCHIVE overall ad revenue since integrating with MoPub.

The company is consistently among the top five performers in Marketplace, MoPub’s real time bidding exchange. The combination of audience demographics and openness to entertainment and gaming advertisers makes the inventory highly coveted within the exchange.

Revenue growth enabled the company to invest in a full-time mobile business unit focused on new development and monetization. resignation Media has also integrated MoPub across their entire app portfolio.
